

May 6, 2008

To Whom it May Concern,

When we formed our firm we wanted a Technology company that could help us grow and give us the level of service that we needed to have in a highly demanding financial practice. Network Data Security Experts has provided us with the expertise we need to build our company on by providing sound IT infrastructure, with a concentration on security.

From the ground up they were able to help us with every aspect from phone, Internet service, servers, PCs, and everything else to get us up and going with a solid base. We are able to rely on them for the personal service and expertise that corporation's one hundred times our size would be envious of. The level of personal service hit a new high when we lost air conditioning this summer. The professionals at Network Data Security Experts were so worried about our server they brought us an air conditioning unit.

They continue to support us with everything from basic support to complex advice and help meeting our data security needs. Because of their guidance and support, we are able to concentrate on doing our business and leave the technology and security worries up to them. We highly recommend Network Data Security Experts for your technology and security needs as they continue to prove that it is not just a name but the way they do business.

Dee Ann Remo
Heritage Wealth Advisors
Richmond, VA